

Major bike players team up

PARTNERSHIP | Yamaha Motor, BMW Motorrad and Honda have entered a collaboration in which they will co-operate to further increase the safety of powered two-wheelers. The three companies made the announcement at the recent Intelligent Transport Systems World Congress in France. The manufacturers say they are joining forces to evaluate the principles of co-operative intelligent transportation systems (C-ITS) to enhance powered two-wheeler safety.

